

This was an only a small marketing project. It uses thermochromic dyes and Arduino mini. According to person run distance, person clothes change color. It leads to more motivation to run. Clothes will have 3 rank and according to distance more rank will change color in a society it will show the other people to how much distance a person run to day.